• Challenges
• Frameworks
• Guides and considerations
The Cancer Course

• Diagnosis “Existential Crisis”
• Treatment “The Long Haul”
• Rehabilitation/Remission “Limbo”
• Survivorship “Sword of Damocles”
• Recurrence/Metastasis “Life in Balance”
• Terminal “In a Strange Land”
Challenges at Diagnosis

- Existential Crisis – “Why Me”?
- Facing Mortality
- Understanding Complex Information & Systems
- Making Decisions
- Telling Family & Friends
What do people want/need

- Recognition – someone to notice
- Having agency – to remain active
- Community- a sense of connection
Balance is the Key to Life
The “New Normal”

- Transitioning to “Survivorship”
- “Now What?” & What will life be like now?
- Lost and found
- Fears of Recurrence
- Longer term impact on daily living
- Others may not understand it’s not over
- Not a “one size fits all” process
- Physical & Emotional components
There is no “one” formula for conversation

The answer is:

???????????
Who?
What?
Where?
When?
Why?
It will depend on:

- Cancer Trajectory
- Previous life experiences
- Individual developmental stage
- Family Life Cycle
- Role in family
- Support systems
- Relationship
Considerations:

- Previous experience
- Self-esteem
- Stage of cancer
- Stage of life
- Beliefs/values

- Role in family
- Other life struggles
- Personality
- Coping resources
- Spirituality/faith
A framework for the experience

• Arthur Frank, medical sociologist, names three kinds of stories that people tend to make in the wake of illness and suffering
• The stories intersect and overlap
• Naming the story can provide a way to know where one is on the map
The quest story

• A person journeys through and faces suffering in the belief that something is to be gained from the experience.
• A story of transformation and change
• Most approved story.
The restitution story

• In western society there is a belief in restorable health.
• I was healthy, now I am sick, but tomorrow I will be healthy again.
• People with chronic illness do not fit this story and find it difficult to tell a story which does not appear to have been restored.
• Process of finding restitution
The chaos story

- Frequently unheard; lived chaos cannot be told; least approved story; overwhelming
- Often disjointed and without sequence
Guides

• Give yourself time to absorb the news /speak your truth
• Talk to counsellor
• Chose a special time/place
• Acknowledge emotions
• Opportunity to ask questions
• Making plans to meet again
Guides cont’

• You might like to write down what you would like to say

• When ready, talk with your partner or other adult support person about what you would like to say to your children
Discussion with children:

- Information about the cancer
- Feelings and concerns
- Changes which may affect your children
- Research demonstrates that open and honest communication promotes resiliency/post traumatic growth in children
The Guest House

This being human is a guest house.
Every morning a new arrival.
A joy, a depression, a meanness, some momentary awareness comes as an unexpected visitor.
Welcome and entertain them all!
Even if they’re a crowd of sorrows,
who violently sweep your house
empty of its furniture,
still, treat each guest honorably.
He may be clearing you out for some new delight.
The dark though, the shame, the malice, meet them at the door laughing,
and invite them in.
Be grateful for whoever comes,
because each has been sent as a guide from beyond.
